

Windham Economic Development Committee Proposes Water Supply Study

The Windham Economic Development Committee (WEDC) recently made a presentation to the Board of Selectmen about the need for a Water Supply Study. The lack of Municipal Water Supply has been identified as the leading factor inhibiting economic development in Windham. Selectman will be taking up the matter of placing a Warrant Article before voters in March to fund such a study.

The Windham Economic Development Committee's proposed Water Study is supported by the Community Development Department, Fire Chief Tom McPherson, and the Windham School Board.

This is the first of a series of articles to create awareness about a major effort by the WEDC to gain a thorough understanding of Windham's future water needs. The articles will discuss key water supply issues facing Windham. They will outline how a municipal water system can help meet Master Plan goals. The articles will discuss current water sources. And they will outline 3 major reasons for considering a municipal water supply system.
